

The Mary Elizabeth Braddon Association

Co-Founded by Anna Brecke and Dr. Janine Hatter

In 2013 the 'Mary Elizabeth Braddon Association' (MEBA) was launched. Braddon is now a staple author of Victorian sensation fiction, but as recent scholarship is demonstrating, her work is much more diverse. The MEBA aims to consolidate Braddon's recognition in Nineteenth-Century Studies by offering a central platform for Braddon studies. To mark the 2015 centenary of her death, the MEBA has partnered with organizations in the UK and US to hold events designed to increase awareness of Braddon and to celebrate her legacy.

Materials to be found on the website include a Braddon biography, a list of her works with links to e-texts, a bibliography of scholarly secondary material, book reviews, and blog posts on her life and works. We welcome students, academics and general readers to share their love of Braddon and contribute to the blog. The website can be found here: www.maryelizabethbraddon.com.

To keep up-to-date with MEBA information, please follow us on Twitter: @braddoninfo and join the mailing list by emailing us on: braddoninfo@gmail.com.

M. E. Braddon